corpse, a dissolute convent of prelates and cardinals, whose vast empire and influence have been reduced to those totter ing walls, the head of a church that has outlived her age, the rapital of a state in open rebellion—Rome, like Tithonus c the fable, has reached the last stage of decrepitude withou vinces south of the Apennines, the lands of the Sabini an Umbri, have contracted that Levitical spirit by which a talents and eminence are exclusively directed to the altar an its intrigue . Hence that tinge of Jesuitism that taints th Roman character in the highest classes, painted, as it were m the lines of their countenances, in the sound of their me in family or connexion, or servants of priests-the populae costume and manners, and more in their sudden and often generous bursts of passions-the antique Romans-such a may, with a better education, become one day the freemer of the capital of the redeemed country.

even before the Grecian era, the raler of letters and arts, is now occupied by a soft, gentle, highly-refined people, in whose slender and gracile frames, in whose elegant but effeminate features, it would not be easy to recognize the successors of those fierce partisans who, after receiving liberty as a from their brothers of Lombardy, were so loose and violent in abusing it, but no less warm and intrepid, and desperately obstinate before they consented to give it up. Traces of the aucient Tuscan valor are to be found in Arezzo, in Pistoia. and wherever, indeed, you rise toward the Apennines; but the capital, Florence the beautiful, the Atheas of modern Italy, she alone, the mother of genius, who has given birth to eater number of eminent men than all the rest of Italy put together-Florence is now islly and voluptuously lying in he lap of her green vale of Arno, 'like a beautiful pearl set in emerald,' as if lulled by the murmur of her river and by the fuscination of the smiles of her climate. Sinking into a state of dejection proportionate to the excitement of the ages of the Strozzi, worn out, enervated by a long peace and by the artful tyranny of their princes, these people are scattely aware that their silken ties have now been changed into an iron chain. Gay and thoughtless, vain of their by gone greatness, of their polished language, of their churches, and of themselves, the Florentines are called, perhaps not unjustly. the French of Italy. GRINDING OPERATION OF THE SEA .- It is curious to obbelies to open year of the soil of this island, from the beliest mountain to the smallest grain of sand on the shore, illustrates its volcanic organ. The pebbles in our walk to-day were either rounded fragments of light pumice, marking the edges of the broad waves that had thrown them on the beach, or were black, red, or variegated, compact or spongy, as they chanced to be of scorize or of a more solid basaltic By standing close to the water's edge, we could see and hear in active operation the grinding process by which irregular lumps of stone speedily become smooth pebbles, and afterward fine sakd. A long heavy sea would fall over and thunder on the beach like a broad, green cascade, swampand manage of the course and rock, and carrying them back as it receded with a sharp, wet rattle. Another and snother wave immediately followed with the same thundering fall and the same rattling recoil, keeping the whole shore for many hundred yards in a perpetual grinding motion. is going on in a greater or less degree all round the island, and for centuries has done the same.

MEHEMET ALI AND THE SIBYL .- While the debasing in fluence of the most gross superstitions is widely spread throughout Egypt, not only among the Mussulman inhabitants, but also the native Jews and Christians, the viceroy i resolved to show in this respect the superiority of his intell gence, as he has done on several occasions. One instance may suffice. At the commencement of his reign, when his power was not yet established, a sort of sibyl made her apconrance at Cairo, and gained a vast number of proselytes It was given out that she had at her command a familiar spirit, whose very hand could be touched and mysterious voice heard in the dark. It was chiefly among the soldiers and their officers that she found her most zealous dupes and partizans. Mehemet Ali was anxious to know something more certain about this magician, whose influence might become dangerous. He caused her, therefore, to be brough to the palace, and told her he desired to have some conversation with her genius. She consented to exhibit before It was night; the lights were extinguished in the mandarah, where the principal officers were assembled. Mehemet Ali had strictly warsed his servants to bring s light immediately he should call for one. The sibyl evoked her spirit. The djinn answered; and his hollow voice, like that of a ventriloquist, seemed to issue from the wall. He gave his hand to the Pasha to kiss, when the latter, seiring it firmly, called instantly for lights. It was the hand of the magician herself; who, on perceiving the cheat discovered implored his pardon. The bystanders, astonished at the boldness of Mehemet whom they looked upon as irreligious began to murmur. The Pasha, after having reproached them for their base credulity, ordered the shelf to be thrown them for their base credulity, ordered the subyl to be thrown into the Nile. The officers manifested some unwillingness to execute the sentence, but Mehemet overcame their seru-COLUMEIAN CREAM,—Refined on an entirely new principle.—This inestimable compound is the most valuable prequaration yet-discovered to efford case and confort in shaving. This principle of its manufacture embraces a complete neutralization of Alkali, the active presence of which is found in every other Soap.—

The absence, therefore, of this deleterious ingredient is of itself a high recommendation. Added to this, it is composed of several delighting unidients, producing a delicious softness of the skin, effectually re moving all jumples in a few days, and answering as well with cold as with warm water. It is put up in convenient earthern boxes, from which it is used. A liberal discount made to wholesale purchasers.—

SUMMER DRINK—We would remind our readers of the heatthy and delightful summer beverage prepared by Messrs. Sands, No. 79 and 100 Fulton-st. It is by far superior to all other drinks, possessing, as it does, valuable medicinal properties, in addition to those which make it so agreeable. It is a perfect substitute for stimulating drinks and the friends of temperance will find it just the thing for renovating the physical frame, and infusing renewed health and vigor.

From the New-York Planet, June 30.

TEMPERANCE DRINK—The most delectable and healthy summer drink that can be obtained is Sand's Sarsaparilla Mead, which every one can prepare for themselves from the Syrup in a glass of cold or iced water. Its flavor is delightful. Sold by druggists and grocers generally.

Prepared and sold at wholesale and retail, and for exportation, by A. B. & D. Sands, druggists, 79 and 190 Fulton st and 77 East Broadway; sold also by Gassner & Young, 132 Chatham st. Price 50 cents, 197 lin.

THE EAGLE COOKING STOVE.

THIS neally invented Cooking Stove, adapted to the use of Coal or Wood, is for superior to any other now in use. The over, which is larger than that of any other Stove of the same size, is protected in part by a patent guard plate which prevents it from becoming too much heated, and serves also to protect the flue from becoming filled with coal or other obstructions to the draft. It also has a patent damper in for the purpose of conveying of the vapor arising from cooking, and also the dast ari ing from the coal. The back boilers, which in other Stoves are rendered almost useless by their remoteness from the blaze, are so situated as to receive the same benefit from the are at those in front. Another very important recommendation to the Engle Cooking Stove is that it requires less fuel than any other patent now in use.
